Arena's Splendors Call Him to Repentance After a Month of Whoppers.

RAN AWAY FROM MINES

Day in and day out for weeks a little runaway boy, brown eyed and gentle spoken and undoubtedly a Spaniard, had seen sticking to lying stories when questioned again and again at the rooms of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children as to his home and parentage. And then he was taken to see Barnum's circus.

It was the first circus the lad had ever seen, the first time, in fact, that he ever had heard of a circus; and the boy is 13 years old. The glories in the Garden dazzled the lad, and as he was led back to the society rooms emoa long time and he told a true

It was the idea of Sunt. Ernest K. Coulter of the Children's Society after the weeks of fruitless questioning to prescribe a trip to the circus on one of the last days of the show with the hope that the splendors of bespangled tumblers and gay clad elephants and the clowns and the music would stir the boy as gentle questioning had failed to do.

"Circus? What's a circus?" he asked the astounded superintendent. "Is it like a bull fight?" he added when a vague conception of the sawdust ecstabrief description of the three ringed
